PRESENTATION

In November 2026, Aracena (Huelva) will become the epicenter of the underground world with the celebration of a new edition of CUEVATUR, the Spanish Congress on Show Caves and Mining Tourism. After more than 20 years of history, this event has established itself as one of the main national benchmarks in underground tourism.

CUEVATUR is a forum for the exchange of knowledge, where the latest works, studies, and research carried out in Spain's show caves and tourist mines are presented. In its tenth edition, the congress takes a step further by opening its doors to the international arena, with the aim of sharing experiences, best practices, and technical advances from different countries.

Since its first edition in 2005, CUEVATUR has brought together hundreds of scientists and researchers from disciplines such as geology, paleontology, engineering, and tourism. Over the years, more than 500 works have been presented, compiled in the Congress Proceedings, which now constitute an essential reference collection for scholars of the underground world.

In addition to its scientific dimension, CUEVATUR is a meeting space for professionals in the sector: managers, guides, technicians, and others who work in show caves and tourist mines. It has also become a key forum for those promoting the opening of new cavities for tourism, as it brings together the leading experts in this field.

In this edition, we aim to take a significant step toward the official UNESCO declaration of the World Day of Caves and the Subterranean World, a celebration that has united caves worldwide every June 6 since 2016.

CUEVATUR 2026 will therefore be an essential event for all those who are passionate about underground heritage and who work for its conservation, study, and dissemination.

VENUE AND DATES

The Congress will take place in Aracena (Huelva) on November 11, 12, 13, and 14, 2026, and the sessions will be held at the “Teatro Sierra de Aracena,” located at Avda. Huelva s/n, 21200 Aracena.

Aracena, designated as a “Tourist Municipality” of Andalusia in 2006, is the capital of its region and gives its name to both the Sierra and the Natural Park that surrounds it. This park is one of the most significant protected areas in the Autonomous Community of Andalusia, encompassing the entire northern part of the province of Huelva.

The municipality of Aracena, with a maximum altitude of 867 meters and a population of over 8,000 inhabitants, serves as the administrative center of the judicial district that includes 31 municipalities. Its role as an administrative, commercial, and tourist capital makes it the main service hub of the entire region.

Today, Aracena is a dynamic city that exemplarily combines its tourist attractions with its function as a regional center. It is a privileged location, where a valuable and diverse historical and artistic heritage is complemented by an exceptional natural environment that allows for a wide range of outdoor activities, such as hiking and cycling tourism.

Its tourist offering is further enhanced by a vibrant traditional festival calendar, a modern cultural agenda, a rich and varied gastronomy based on high-quality products, and a comprehensive infrastructure of restaurants and accommodation.

However, Aracena's greatest tourist emblem is the Gruta de las Maravillas (Cave of Wonders), one of the most beautiful and remarkable karst formations in Spain. Its uniqueness and spectacular nature have made it the most visited tourist site in the province of Huelva. Opened to the public in 1914, it was one of the first show caves in Spain, marking a milestone in local history by driving significant economic and social development.
